

STAND UP & SPEAK OUT

Stand UP & Speak OUT (SUSO) is an anti-bullying initiative founded by Emmy-nominated composer Jill Nesi. SUSO is partnered with the Connecticut Commission on Women, Children, Seniors, Equity and Opportunity. Our mission is to provide schools and organizations with inspiring films, songs, live performances, music, scripts, and educational guides that address empathy, connection, inclusion, and kindness. Dr. Robin Stern, Co-Executive Director of The Yale Center for Emotional Intelligence, and Central Connecticut State University have contributed educational materials that pair with the musical production and musical film we have developed. The goal of these activities is to facilitate productive dialogue and foster anti-bullying culture in all schools. The Connecticut Association for Human Services (EIN 06-0653158) is our 501c3 fiscal sponsor, enabling us to accept tax-deductible donations to support this important work.

Our goal is to share SUSO with children, parents, and educators across the United States. The show has already been performed in middle and high schools and at theaters across Connecticut, at the Capitol in Hartford, and at the United Nations in New York. We are currently seeking sponsors to enable us to expand our work to include additional live performances at theaters and community venues within and outside of Connecticut. Donors will be recognized on our website at <http://susofilms.com> as well as on social media and at preview events. Specific benefits of each sponsorship level are included on the attached form.

All funds will be used to continue and expand our efforts to prevent bullying by building empathy and connection through the arts. Thank you for considering our request.

Sincerely,

Jill Nesi
